16. New International Doctoral Tuition Scholarship available for F18.
Starting fall’18, the University of Guelph will begin awarding an International Doctoral Tuition Scholarship with a minimum level of commitment of $11,000 per year for four years; this amount equates to the current difference in tuition between international and domestic doctoral students. The scholarship will be awarded to new international full-time doctoral (PhD and DVSc) students with a minimum A-/80% entrance average (Guelph equivalent) for up to four years (12 semesters). New international full-time doctoral students without a minimum A-/80% entrance average will become eligible for the scholarship once they achieve PhD candidacy for the balance of the four-year period of eligibility (as determined from the beginning of the doctoral program). The new scholarship will be available to existing international full-time doctoral students who were accepted with a minimum A-/80% entrance average or who have achieved PhD candidacy for the balance of the four-year period of eligibility (as determined from the beginning of the doctoral program). The new scholarship will not be tenable with existing awards for which International students are eligible, such as the IGTS, Trillium, Vanier and Arrell, nor scholarships provided by home governments.
In the coming weeks, details around the administration of the scholarship will be released along with a more public announcement. In the meantime, if you believe you may have an eligible new doctoral candidate, please contact Ariah at csgrad@uoguelph.ca.
