

Writing for The Conversation Canada: Workshop on Feb. 26

Last June the university became a member of The Conversation Canada, an innovative digital media outlet dedicated to bringing scholarly work to a national and international audience.

Since joining, a number of commentaries by University of Guelph professors have been published on the news site and in many cases these commentaries have also been picked up and published by other national and even international media such as the National Post, Macleans and Daily Mail.

In just this short time, Conversation Canada has proven to be an effective and powerful way of promoting U of G's expertise and research.

You are invited to join Scott White, the editor of The Conversation Canada, for an hour and a half workshop on Feb. 26 either from 10:30 to 12:00 or 1:30 to 3:00 in Peter Clark Hall.

At this workshop, he will run through the steps needed to use this useful resource to highlight your research and share your expertise beyond peer-reviewed publications.
