My name is Scott McEwen. I obtained my DVM and Doctor of Veterinary Science degrees from the University of Guelph. I am currently a Professor in the Department of Population Medicine, Ontario Veterinary College. My research focuses on the epidemiology of foodborne infections in food animal populations, particularly E. coli and antibiotic resistant organisms, but also Salmonella and other pathogens. Since 1986 I have taught food safety to veterinary students and graduate students in a variety of degree programs and have been the principal research advisor of over 60 graduate students. I am author or co-author of over 260 publications in refereed scientific journals, mostly related to food safety, and have delivered invited research presentations in nine countries. I serve on several national and international public health and food safety committees and boards.

Learning Outcomes

Course Learning Outcomes

The goals of this course are to study the principles and practice of food safety, with emphasis on foods of animal origin. The detection, epidemiology, human health risk and control of hazards in foods will be discussed. This course will be multidisciplinary, with emphasis on the microbiological, chemical, esthetic and toxic hazards in foods. This course is designed to assist individuals engaged in food safety activity in protecting the public health from hazards in foods.

By the end of this course, you should be able to:

1. List important microbiological, chemical and physical food safety hazards that can occur in foods, and describe their implications to human health;
2. Identify and describe the sources of food safety hazards in foods, factors affecting multiplication or reduction in exposure to humans, and methods of inspection and control;
3. Analyze and interpret basic qualitative food safety data, draw conclusions and formulate recommendations;
4. Work with others to evaluate the food safety perspectives of various participants in the farm-to-fork continuum and to synthesize optimal food safety strategies; and
5. Address basic food safety problems through analysis and research. Obtain, critically assess and synthesize knowledge from relevant sources in order to identify and prioritize potential solutions, and effectively communicate the findings and recommendations in written format.

Teaching and Learning Activities

Method of Learning

The course is available in distance format only. It is divided into 12 units that correspond to weeks in the semester. Assessment Descriptions

Online Discussions & Summary

Active participation in discussion is an important part of the course. The discussion questions are designed to stimulate thought, learning and skill development in areas that pertain to the weekly units. Students will be evaluated on their participation in the discussions (10%) and are responsible for submitting a 3-page report on their participation (5%).

Food Safety Policy

For this exercise, you will each be assigned to two different groups, an Expert Group that will discuss and develop a position paper on the policy question, and a policy group composed of one or two members from each expert group. The policy group is to discuss and debate the policy question and try to achieve consensus concerning the best official policy for Canada.

Grade is based on assessment of expert and policy group reports, individual contributions and peer assessments (using the PEAR tool).

Food Safety Risk Characterization

The purpose of this assignment is to develop a commodity flow chart, to identify a hazard, and perform a qualitative exposure assessment.

Capstone Project

In this assignment you are expected to select a problem from a list that will be provided to you, then analyze the problem, suggest and rank possible solutions (after identifying and describing ranking criteria), identify the roles of different stakeholders in the optimal solution (at the local, regional, national and international levels, as appropriate), and identify and discuss potential barriers to your solutions, and ways around those barriers.

During the course, your instructor will interact with you on various course matters on the course website using the following ways of communication:

- Announcements: The instructor will use Announcements on the Course Home page to provide you with course reminders and updates. Please check this section frequently for course updates from your instructor.
- Ask Your Instructor Discussion: Use this discussion forum to ask questions of your instructor about content or course-related issues with which you are unfamiliar. Netiquette Expectations

For distance education courses, the course website is considered the classroom and the same protections, expectations, guidelines, and regulations used in face-to-face settings apply, plus other policies and considerations that come into play specifically because these courses are online.

Inappropriate online behaviour will not be tolerated. Examples of inappropriate online behaviour include:

- Posting inflammatory messages about your instructor or fellow students;
- Using obscene or offensive language online;
- Copying or presenting someone else's work as your own;
- Adapting information from the Internet without using proper citations or references;
- Buying or selling term papers or assignments;
- Posting or selling course materials to course notes websites;
- Having someone else complete your quiz or completing a quiz for/with another student;
- Stating false claims about lost quiz answers or other assignment submissions;
- Threatening or harassing a student or instructor online;
- Discriminating against fellow students, instructors, and/or TAs;
- Using the course website to promote profit-driven products or services;

- Attempting to compromise the security or functionality of the learning management system; and
- Sharing your username and password.

Submission of Assignments to Dropbox

Assignments for this course should be submitted electronically via the online Dropbox tool. When submitting your assignments using the Dropbox tool, do not leave the page until your assignment has successfully uploaded. To verify that your submission was complete, you can view the submission history immediately after the upload to see which files uploaded successfully. The system will also email you a receipt. Save this email receipt as proof of submission.

Be sure to keep a back-up copy of all of your assignments in the event that they are lost in transition. In order to avoid any last-minute computer problems, your instructor strongly recommend you save your assignments to a cloud-based file storage (e.g., Google Docs), or send to your email account, so that should something happen to your computer, the assignment could still be submitted on time or re-submitted.

It is your responsibility to submit your assignments on time as specified in the schedule section of this outline. Be sure to check the technical requirements and make sure you have the proper computer, that you have a supported browser, and that you have reliable Internet access. Remember that technical difficulty is not an excuse not to turn in your assignment on time. Don't wait until the last minute as you may get behind in your work.

If, for some reason, you have a technical difficulty when submitting your assignment electronically, please contact your instructor or CourseLink Support.

<http://spaces.uoguelph.ca/ed/contact-us/>

Late Policy

If you choose to submit your individual assignments to the Dropbox tool late, the full allocated mark will be reduced by 10% per day after the deadline for the submission of the assignment to a limit of six days at which time access to the Dropbox folder will be closed.

Extensions will be considered for medical reasons or other extenuating circumstances. If you require an extension, discuss this with the instructor as soon as possible and well before the due date. Barring exceptional circumstances, extensions will not be granted once the due date has passed. These rules are not designed to be arbitrary, nor are they inflexible. They are designed to keep you organized, to ensure that all students have the same amount of time to work on assignments, and to help to return marked materials to you in the shortest possible time.

Obtaining Grades and Feedback

Unofficial assessment marks will be available in the Grades tool of the course website.

Your instructor will have grades posted online within 2 weeks of the submission deadline, if the assignment was submitted on time. Once your assignments are marked you can view your grades on the course website by selecting Grades from the Tools dropdown menu on the navbar. Your course will remain open to you for seven days following the last day of the final exam period.

University of Guelph degree students can access their final grade by logging into WebAdvisor (using your U of G central ID). Open Learning program students should log in to the OpenEd Student Portal to view their final grade (using the same username and password you have been using for your courses).
