2021 DVM STUDENT SUMMER EXTERNSHIP

WHAT:
The Department of Veterinary Sciences and the Wyoming State Veterinary Diagnostic Laboratory (WSVL) at the University of Wyoming are offering a 10-week summer externship in veterinary diagnostic medicine and disease investigation. This opportunity is for students that have completed 1-3 years of DVM training. It would be particularly suitable for students interested in obtaining experience in diseases of food and companion animals, especially those considering a career in diagnostic medicine (pathology, virology, bacteriology, parasitology). The externship will provide diagnostic experience at the WSVL (an AAVLD accredited laboratory) and also opportunity to complete a small research project.

The summer externship is a competitive, 1-credit externship, with one student selected annually. The extern will be paid a $6,000.00 scholarship. Interested DVM students that have completed 1-3 years of training and are in good standing at an AVMA-accredited vet school are encouraged to apply.

APPLY:
Applications must be received by the end of March to ensure full consideration. Please send applications and enquiries to glattim@uwyo.edu. Applications should state the preferred time period in the cover letter.

A letter from the applicant’s academic dean indicating approval of the externship is also required upon receiving an offer. Students must be vaccinated against rabies and have their own health insurance. Selection will be based on qualifications as demonstrated by a resume, and letter of interest. We encourage applicants from diverse backgrounds.
